

JVA Board Announces Election of President Elect

Lexington, Ky. (September 17, 2009) - The Junior Volleyball Association (JVA) Board of Directors has announced the election of Ron Kordes as the organization's new President-Elect. Ron is well known in volleyball circles and is currently Director of the Kentucky Indiana Volleyball Academy (KIVA), Commissioner of the Ohio Valley Region (OVR) and one of the top high school coaches in the United States. Ron was one of the original founders of the JVDA and has played an integral part in working with the 2010 JVA schedule and the partnership with AAU.

"During 2009, we have made incredible progress, thanks mainly to dedicated board members, committees and active member participation," said JVA President John Sample. "We have been extremely lucky to take advantage of Ron as a JVA member and active board member. Now, Ron has agreed to help head the organization as we embark on our 2010 agenda."

The Board of Directors will have two additional seats up for election at the December annual meeting and is now taking applications and nominations for those positions. Please contact John Sample at jsample@ascvb.com with any nominations.
