What made you decide to get into coaching volleyball?

I started playing volleyball when I was 10 and continued on to pursue my dream of playing collegiately at Francis Marion University. When I switched my major and made the hard decision to take a step back from playing, I still wanted to be involved. Volleyball has always been apart of my life and I did not want to stop. I wanted to help support athletes grow their love for the game and pursue their dreams.

What are your career goals in the sport?

My goal is to inspire and help develop student athletes on and off the court. I will do so by creating a positive, discipline, and fun team-orientated environment. Not only do I want to help players succeed athletically, but I also want to help grow players off the court in other skill such as leadership, sportsmanship, and resilience.

Which coaches have influenced you the most?

Coach, and friend, Doug Balsler has influenced me the most. Although I have known Doug practically since I could walk, he has influenced me not only as a coach but as a person. I have learned how to be self-accountable, understand/deal with adversity, as well as how to promote a learning environment for my student athletes. Volleyball wise, he has influenced my coaching style and how to create positive relationships within the volleyball community.

What do you enjoy most about your coaching job?

I enjoy getting to share and spread my love for volleyball through coaching young student athletes who share their love as well. Most importantly, I absolutely love seeing the growth of each individual athlete throughout each season that shows all their hard work and determination.
